

“Share of the bill” transcript

There are a number of people and businesses working together to supply your electricity.

Our job at SA Power Networks is to distribute electricity to homes and businesses across the State through our network of poles and wires.

Our services include, maintaining and building a reliable distribution network, responding to outages including those caused by extreme weather, and ensuring community safety from electric shock and from bushfire.

The average customer today is paying about $10 per week for our distribution services. In real terms, you are paying the same for our services as you did in 1999.

That’s due to our efficiency, which means our share of the residential bill has fallen from 50% in 1999 to about 33% today.

At SA Power Networks, we're committed to delivering safe, reliable and efficient electricity services.
